SOUTH-CAROLINA.

By His Excellency

JAMES GLEN, Esquire,

Captain-General, Governor, and Commander in Chief, in and over His Majesty's said Province.

A PROCLAMATION.

WHEREAS I have received information, that there have been several counterfeit bills, of the denomination of TEN POUNDS, lately discovered, resembling the lawful money of this province: I have therefore thought fit, by and with the advice of his majesty's honourable council, to issue this my PROCLAMATION, promising a reward of Five Hundred Pounds currency, to any person or persons who shall discover the author or authors of such counterfeit bills, upon their being convicted thereof; and his majesty's free pardon, to any one of the accomplices who shall confess and be evidence against any one or more of the offenders.

Given under my Hand, and the Great Seal of his Majesty's said Province, in the Council-Chamber in Charles-Town, this Twelfth Day of July, in the Year of our Lord One Thousand Seven Hundred and Fifty-one, and in the Twenty-fifth Year of our Reign.

By His Excellency's Command,
William Pinckney, Dep. Secr.

GOD save the KING.

RULES proper to be observed in TRADE.

I. ENDEAVOUR to be as perfect as you can in the particular calling you are engaged in; learn to know all the arts and mysteries thereunto belonging; and be assiduous in every part thereof:——industry being the natural means of acquiring Wealth, Honour, and reputation,——as idleness is of poverty, shame and disgrace.

II. Lay a good foundation in regard to principle;—be sure to be just and honest in your dealings;—not wilfully over-reach, or deceive your neighbour; and keep always in your eye the golden rule of, Doing as you would be done unto.

III. Have a strict regard in discharging all legal debts;—do not evade your creditors by any shuffling arts, in giving notes under your hand, only to defer payment;—but, if you have it in your power, discharge all debts when they become due.—Above all, when you are straitened for want of money, be cautious of taking it up at an high interest.—This method has been the ruin of many, therefore, endeavour to avoid it.

IV. Be diligent in your business;—endeavour to be as much in your shop, or ware-house, or in whatever place it properly lies, as possibly you can;—leave it not to servants to transact; for customers will not regard them, as yourself;—they generally think they shall not be so well served; besides, mistakes may arise by the negligence, or inexperience of servants; and, therefore, your presence will prevent, probably, the loss of a good customer.

V. Be complaisant to the meanest, as well as greatest;—you are as much obliged to use good manners for a farthing, as for a pound; the one demands it from you, as well as the other;—though there may be difference in the degrees of your behaviour, according to the several ranks of persons.

VI. Be not too talkative, but speak as much as is necessary to recommend your goods; and always observe to keep within the rules of decency.—If customers slight your goods, and undervalue them, endeavour to convince them of their mistake, if you can, but not affront them;—do not be pert in your answers, but with patience hear, and with meekness give answers;—for if you affront in a small matter, it may probably hinder you from a future good customer.—They may think that you are dear in the articles they want, but by going to another, may find it not so, and probably may return again; but if you behave rude and affronting, there is no hope either of their returning, or their future custom.—Besides, it may be in the power of one person to hinder many from dealing with you:—Therefore, behave with good-nature and complaisance, and endeavour to gain the good will of all.

VII. Take great care in keeping your accompts; and examine whether you gain or lose; and carefully survey your stock, and inspect into every particular of your affairs.

VIII. Take care, as much as you can, whom you trust,—neither take, nor give long credit; but, at the farthest annually settle your accompts.—Deal at the fountain-head for as many articles as you can; and, if it lies in your power, for ready money; this method you will find to be most profitable in the end.—Endeavour to keep a proper fortment in your way, but not over-stock your self.—Aim not at making a great figure in your shop, in unnecessary ornaments, but let it be neat and useful; too great an appearance may rather prevent, than engage customers.—Make your business your pleasure, and other entertainments will only appear necessary for relaxation therefrom.

IX. Strive to maintain a fair character in the world; that will be the best means for advancing your credit, gaining you the most flourishing trade, and enlarging your fortune.—Condescend to no mean action, but add a lustre to trade, by keeping up the dignity of your nature.

London, May 9. The following is an exact list of the council appointed to assist her royal highness the princess of Wales as regent of the kingdom, in case his majesty's demise should happen before the prince of Wales is eighteen years of age.

His royal highness the duke of Cumberland.
The Archbishop of Canterbury.
The lord Chancellor.
The lord high treasurer of Great-Britain, or first lord commissioner of the Treasury.
The president of the council.
Lord privy Seal.
The lord high admiral of Great-Britain, or first commissioner of the Admiralty.
The two principal Secretaries of State.
And the lord chief Justice of the king's Bench.

London, May 8. We hear that a treaty of marriage is on foot between ——— Penn, Esq; proprietor of Pennsylvania, and lady Fermor, daughter of the right hon. the earl of Pomfret.

London, May 7. 'Tis said that this day his royal highness the prince of Wales will be at the house of peers.

London, May 6. Friday there was a numerous court at St. James's, when his royal highness the prince of Wales received the compliments of the nobility and gentry on his creation; the ladies who approached to kiss his royal highness's hand, were instantly raised and saluted by his royal highness, with all the complaisance and affability peculiar to his princely father.

It is said, that his royal highness the duke of Cumberland will shortly make a visit to his majesty's German dominions; and pay a visit to his serene highness the Stadtholder, in order to consult about repairing and fortifying some places there.

A bill is ordered into parliament, for enlighting and paving with Purbeck pavement the street call'd Pall-mall, and for erecting 50 Obelisks with lamps in the said street.

On Saturday a general court of the society of the free British fishery, was held at Mercers hall; the assembly was very numerous, and many persons of figure were there. The court, agreed with the greatest harmony, to several resolutions, one of which was, to open immediately the subscription books of the society. Previous to which, his royal highness George prince of Wales was elected, nemine contradicente, their governor, as a mark of their dutiful regard to our most gracious sovereign, as well as in consideration of the many shining virtues which adorn his royal highness heir; and as a tribute paid to the memory of his ever-to-be lamented illuſtrious father; who, had heaven thought fit to have prolonged his days, would have been the glory and ſtrength of the great national undertaking of the Herring fiſhery.

London, May 3. Yeſterday was held a board of admiralty, when Thomas Cleveland, Eſq; was appointed ſecretary to that board, in the room of Thomas Corbett, Eſq; deceaſed.

Yeſterday there was a great court at Leiceſter-houſe, when all the officers appointed for his royal highneſs the prince of Wales took their place accordingly.

We hear the lords are to be ſummoned to attend the houſe on Tueſday next, in order to ſettle the guardianſhip of his royal highneſs the prince of Wales.

London, May 5. Yeſterday the lords of the admiralty appointed Capt. Ewſkine commander of the Frederick, a 20 gun ſhip.

London, May 1. Yeſterday the great cauſe ended in the houſe of peers, wherein Thomas Drummond, Eſq; ſecond ſon of the late lord John Drummond, was appellant, and his majeſty's advocate of Scotland, on behalf of his majeſty reſpondent, wherein the appellant ſued for the forfeited eſtate of the late duke of Perth, which was determin'd in favour of his majeſty.

DIRECTIONS for taking the True Britiſh OIL.

IN all outward caſes, let the patient bathe the part affected [illegible] this oil before the fire, till a ſufficient quantity is ſoak'd [illegible] night and morning, wrapping it up in flannel; but if any ulce[illegible] any wound, you muſt after bathing it, dip a little lint in th[illegible] and apply it to the wound, repeating it as before. For deaf[illegible] drop 4 or 5 drops into the ears, ſtopping [illegible] and repeat it as occaſion requires. For [illegible] coughs, and other inward diſorders let the [illegible] ſon) take 18 or 20 drops at firſt, night and [illegible] white wine or ale, or on a lump of ſugar [illegible] according to the ſtrength and conſtitution of the patient, or a[illegible] caſion may require, till it comes to half a ſpoonful or more, al[illegible] beginning with the ſmalleſt doſe, and the like in proportio[illegible] thoſe of younger years. In all ſcorbutick, rheumatick, or l[illegible] diſorders, the patient muſt bathe the part affected, as above, likewiſe take it inwardly at the ſame time, as is directed for in[illegible] diſeaſes, &c. Sailors and ſuch as are liable to the ſcurvy, [illegible] take 20 or 30 drops in a morning faſting, three or four tim[illegible] week, which will infallibly preſerve them from that diſorder, will likewiſe fortify them againſt the infectious air of any dange[illegible] and intemperate climate.——For Beaſts that piſs blood or have [illegible] ſurfeited, or hardneſs or ſtoppage in the maw, you muſt gi[illegible] whole bottle of this oil in a pint of milk, and give it blood-w[illegible] which will entirely remove the diſorder.—Cuts and green wo[illegible] are cured at twice or thrice dreſſing, by applying a little lint di[illegible] in oil to the grieved part every morning and evening.

N.B. In obſtinate caſes, ſuch as the rheumatick, ſcurvy, le[illegible] ſy, or ſciatick pains, after the patient has taken four or five t[illegible] above directed, they may alſo take a common ſpoonful be[illegible] ey are going to bed, and being cover'd up warm, 'twill [illegible] oth by ſweat and urine, and will, by being a few minutes [illegible] d, infallibly relieve the patient in any of thoſe diſorders, if ca[illegible]

The ROYAL PATENT MEDICINAL

SNUFF,

Which radically cures most DISTEMPERS incident to Human Nature,

To be sold, by Crokatt, Brown & Drakeford, at their store in Georg-Town, and Thomas Crokatt in Charles-Town, price 18*s.* per Paper.

The Power, Operation, Use, and Efficacy of the Royal Patent Medicinal Snuff.

THIS excellent medicine operates on the head as a purgative, on the stomach and lungs as a dissolvent of the coagulated Phlegm; and, on the blood and juices, as an alterative.

By its operations on the head, it effectually cures confirmed ... lodged there, &c. deafness, blindness and weakness of sight, ... drowsiness, common pains in the head and gums in a few minutes; lunacies, bloody flux, or piles and jaundice in any degree; impostumations or ulcers, inwardly or outwardly, lethargy, gout, polypusses in the nose, apoplexy and various other, and ... disorders.

By the power on the stomach and lungs, &c. it gradually dissolves coagulated matter; and by the channel of the nose, by stool, ... or perspiration, insensibly carries off every kind of putrefaction; and thus removing all obstruction, or oppression on the breast, ... or lungs, it totally eradicates the asthma, catarrh and ... phthisic; recovers to the stomach and nerves their genial tone and ... tion; fortifies the breast, and utterly annihilates all hysterical disorders.

By its efficacious alterative, and purifying quality, it cleanses the blood and veins, restores the juices to their pristine state, ... all relicks of former infections, and unskilful physicking, and re-establishes the whole animal oeconomy in all their natural functions.

Its singular use and excellence consists in its being pleasant in the taking, not hindering business, travelling, or is interrupted by the common course of eating and drinking.

It may be taken any hour of the day, or at any time of the night. And the patient is so far from being liable to catching cold after it, that it fortifies the head against taking cold; and never fails to have a very happy effect after drinking too much, or bad wine. It is likewise so free from any disagreeable operation, that it neither ... pices or nauseates.

In a word, as all distempers affect the head principally or eventually, so is the nose presumed to be the proper channel by which all wholesome physic should pass: And, however singular this may appear, we humbly apprehend it capable of anatomical demonstration, as well as experimental proof.

Directions for taking the above medicinal Snuff.

TAKE half a paper of this snuff gradually in the evening, and, as its operation varies, according to the habit of body; or whether the patient has been accustomed to the taking of any other kind of snuff, so it will sometimes bring away slight quantities of blood, which always eases the head, but is never attended with bad consequences. It will keep its virtue some years in any climate.

The first time take on half of the double paper, and the other half in two or three days after. If the fever is very violent, or the apoplexy confirmed, three or four single papers, so taken, ... usually effects a cure.

In common pains of the head, or gums, a very little immediately relieves; and half a double paper is generally an ample remedy.

Studious People, in the inns of court, or at the universities, will find a very sensible benefit, in taking a small quantity of this snuff, twice or three times a fortnight, at their going to rest, as it is particularly calculated to awaken the spirits, and reinvigorate the whole animal system.

The papers are impressed on the one side, the Royal Patent Me... ... are signed by the Patentee SMITH.
